IN BOTH HOUSES.

Another Irrigation Debate in the Senate.

Senator Moody Calls Maj. Powell a "Tycoon of Many Tails."

A Railway Land-grant Forfeiture Bill Passes the House.

How Two Congressmen Kept the Unpleasant Personalities of Debate from Getting into the Record.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON (D. C.), July 17.—[By the Associated Press.] Senate.—The Senate resumed consideration of the Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill, the pending question being on the amendment to add to the appropriation of $300,000 for topographic surveys the proposition that half that sum be expended west of the 101st meridian, and that the act of October, 1888, reserving irrigable lands be repealed.

Mr. Call continued his argument of yesterday against the amendment. He argued in favor of the continuance of irrigation surveys, and said all irrigation schemes on a large scale that have been successful have been established by the Government. The repeal of the irrigation law would, Mr. Call said, open that vast area of arid lands of two hundred thousand square miles to the operations of foreign syndicates which would seize much of it under the desert land and timber laws, and the people would be deprived of their use and occupation.

Mr. Moody argued in favor of the amendment, and spoke of its transcendent importance to the people of South Dakota. He ridiculed the pretensions of Maj. Powell, and spoke of him as a "Tycoon of many tails," who knew as much about the arid lands of the West as he did about the mountains of the moon, and not one whit more. The region in which he (Mr. Moody) lived, and for hundreds of miles west of it, which Maj. Powell designated as arid land, was as fine agricultural land as the sun ever shone upon. There was not a acre of desert land in it. It was as well watered as any part of New England or the State of New York. He denied, however, that these lands were withdrawn from settlement under the construction given the irrigation act. If they had been the people of South Dakota would have made themselves heard by Congress.

Mr. Reagan spoke in opposition to the amendment and in favor of continuing irrigation surveys. Without finishing his remarks Mr. Reagan yielded the floor for a motion to adjourn.

No progress having been made with the bill today, Mr. Allison offered a resolution making it in order at any time to move that the debate on any amendments to appropriation bills be limited to five minutes for each Senator, question on such motion to be determined without debate. He remarked that such a resolution had been frequently adopted by the Senate.

House.—Immediately after reading the journal the House went into committee on the bill for the Land Grant Forfeiture Bill.

A short debate ensued, but the heat of the chamber was so great that the majority of members sought the breezes in the lobby and little attention was given to business.

Mr. Anderson of Kansas offered an amendment forfeiting railroad lands not earned at the time limited by the granting acts. Lost—yeas, 37; nays, 58.

Mr. Holman of Indiana offered an amendment forfeiting all land not earned within the time limited by the granting act. Lost.

Mr. McRae of Arkansas offered an amendment directing the Attorney General to institute suits against persons holding lands opposite to the constructed portion of roads which were not constructed within the time specified in the act.

The amendment was defeated and the bill reported to the House.

Mr. Holman moved to recommit it with instructions that the Committee on Public Lands report it back with a provision forfeiting all lands not earned within the time limited in the granting. Lost.

The bill then passed.

The bill, which is the Senate bill in the House substitute therefore, forfeits all lands granted to aid the construction of a railroad opposite to and contiguous with the portion of any such railroad not now completed.

In the course of the debate on the bill Mr. Bynum referred to the colloquy between Messrs. Cannon and Houk the other day, in which they referred to each other as nuisances. This reference was omitted from the record, and Mr. Bynum called attention to a speech by Mr. Cannon during the Fiftieth Congress deprecating the mutilation of records.

Mr. Cannon said he and Mr. Houk said things in the heat of debate which they agreed after should be left out of the record. This has been done in personal matters from time immemorial. Mr. Cannon scored Mr. Bynum sharply, and expressed the opinion that he was the only Representative in the House who had the heart to the one hancery or malignancy on the other to obtrude himself where, under the parliamentary usage of the House, he did not belong. As to his speech in the Fiftieth Congress, that had been a controversy between Mr. Bynum and himself. Mr. Bynum had not come to him and agreed to strike out what had been said, but struck it out without consultation.

GOULD AND MAQUON.
Are They Conducting Negotiations for a M. P. and S. F. Alliance?

The sale of the "Frisco stock" to the Atchison was not expected by Mr. Gould, says the St. Louis Republic. Mr. Huntington had made a bid for it and the Atchison people had raised his bid. Huntington expected to get the property and had sent E. F. Vining to St. Louis and had him appointed assistant general manager of the road so as to have a trusted representative in the general offices. When the Atchison people raised the price on Mr. Huntington, Mr. Gould did not believe that the bid was bona fide. The Atchison road had just entered on its first year under the reorganization and had been in deep water for so long a time that it was not supposed to be in a sufficiently strong financial position to make the purchase, but the willingness of the holders of "Frisco stock" to exchange it for Atchison securities opened the way for the transaction, and it is said that when Mr. Gould realized that the sale was going through, he offered a million more for the stock than the Atchison did, but that his offer came too late, as the arrangements had already been made and the papers signed.

Mr. Gould fully realizes that the Atchison is destined to become a powerful competitor with his properties in the Southwest, and the transfer of the "Frisco" was not thirty-six hours old before reports were received telling of negotiations between Mr. Maquon and Mr. Gould. The Atchison directors at their recent meeting announced that "considerable progress had been made in the matter of our alliance with the Missouri Pacific."

The Experiment Station.
The Southern California Agricultural Experiment Station will be established on the Chino ranch in the northwest quarter of section 34, about one mile from the corporation line of Pomona, and about three miles west of the Ontario colony lands, in San Bernardino county. As heretofore stated in these columns, Prof. Hilgard, director of these stations, long since decided the section of country lying between Pomona and Ontario to be the most representative for such station in Southern California, and after repeated investigations of other localities, strongly recommended the site just described to the regents of the State University at their meeting on Tuesday. A strong and almost successful effort was made to defer action on the matter of the August meeting of the regents, but for good reasons shown by representatives of the Pomona Board of Trade and also by Regents Phelps, Martin, Hellman and others, the recommendation of Prof. Hilgard was approved.

Kansas Silk.
[Abilene Reformer.]
Many of our farmers, says the Newton Republican, are bringing in their cocoons for shipment. Although the silk season has just begun enough is known to enable us to say that the crop this year will be 25 per cent. larger than that of last year, and the quality finer and better than ever.

In a fact there has never been a skip or break in the business in the Newton silk district. The silk worm in this district is perfectly free from disease, which can scarcely be said of any other silk-raising locality in the world. People call France the country of the vine and of the silk worm, but in that country both the grape and the cocoon have almost been destroyed in localities, while both are perfectly healthy here. Kansas' hat is now stuck so full of feathers that she looks like the grand marshal on the Fourth of July, but you can just put in another big plume and call it silk.

Unsurpassed Fruit Crops.
[Santa Ana Blade.]
The wilder regions of real estate boomer in regard to the productive possibilities of our valley have fallen far short of the actual reality of this year's apricot crop. Mr. J. N. Smith has gathered up to date nearly sixty tons of apricots from four acres of trees, and he is not yet done. He employs about twenty pickers and pitters, and there are still three or four weary days' work ahead of them. They not only consume all the daylight but work away into the night—often into "the wee sma' hours" of the text.

Mr. Smith has a Damascus tree upon his place that, if I were to try to describe their appearance and the amount of fruit upon them, the description would be branded as a California story by the skeptical easterner. At the lowest estimate Mr. Smith will clear $350 per acre from his apricots.

What is the use of talking of high-priced lands in the face of such facts as these? There is no limit to the possibilities of fruit-culture in our valley if people will only pay the same attention to details that they do in other branches of business.

A Bluff of Honey.
[Chicago Herald.]
The industry of the little busy bee seems to lose force as a moral example when the profligate and unnecessary toll of a lot of Kentucky bees is considered. The home of these bees was a bluff one hundred and seventy feet high near Franklin, and for a number of years they had been seen to issue from a fissure near its top. It recently occurred to a farmer that the bluff might be full of honey, and, in company with a number of neighbors, he undertook to find out. A hole bored into the bluff completely corroborated his theory. It disclosed one of the most remarkable finds of honey ever discovered. Everybody for miles around has filled a barrel or two, and the farmers are supplied with honey enough to spread on their biscuits and sweeten their whisky for years to come. But the industry for which bees are lauded by the novelists seems to have been misdirected in this case. They produced an enormous surplus of honey which they could not use themselves and which they intended nobody else should use, only to be robbed of it in the end.

A Word to the Wise.
[New York Telegram.]
Gentlemen whose wives are out of town should carefully inspect the "personal" columns of newspapers they send to their better halves. The Washington Star recently contained a "personal" stating that a gentleman whose wife was away for the summer wished to meet a discreet, lively young lady to accompany him to places of amusement. The result was the sudden return of at least five Washington ladies whose husbands had been left behind.

The small fruit trade, especially in blackberries and raspberries, is very active just now; in fact, it is reported that the supply is hardly equal to the demand. Large shipments are being made to Riverside and Arizona, the greater portion of which goes by express.—[Santa Ana Blade.]

The confidence of people who have tried Hood's Sarsaparilla in this preparation is remarkable. It has cured many who have failed to derive any good whatever from other remedies. For reasons caused by impure blood or low state of the system it is unsurpassed.

We do it to the crowd—to note the surprise how this or that can be sold at such a ridiculously reduced figure.

Medical. CATARRH. Throat Diseases, Asthma, Bronchitis and Consumption successfully treated by

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D. M. C. P. R. O. By his Medicated Inhalant and Compound Oxygen Treatment.

Probably no system of practice ever employed has been so universally successful as that introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

CATARRH. Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his disappointment at his remarkable sensitiveness to the cold. Indeed he declares that he is scarcely free from one cold before he has another, and he is always exceedingly careful; it is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of catarrh occur in the throat, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptoms soon appear and he learns to his horror, that instead of recovery from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat.

A sense of soreness in the throat, some foreign substance, as for instance, a hair, obstructing the throat; becomes a source of labor and fatigue; the breath becomes on a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a few days as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur in the disease, and make considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work.

The earlier symptoms of consumption consist in a weariness at times or a disposition to remain inactive, a peculiar sensitiveness to the effects of cold; also, breathlessness upon moving or ascending a hill or stairs, a slight, hacking cough, with or without expectoration, flying pains throughout the chest or back, or under the shoulder blades. These symptoms are more noticeable toward or in the night, slight fever in the afternoon. Cold feet and hands and in many cases a blue lividity of the lips and roots of the finger nails. It is unnecessary to give the symptoms in the more advanced stages of consumption, as there is scarcely a family in our State wherein its ravages have not been felt in a greater or lesser degree.

Every case of catarrh is curable, when properly treated. Eastern visitors and invalids who have themselves of the opportunity of being cured before they return home.

Those who desire to consult me in regard to their cases had better call at the office for an examination, but, if impossible to visit the office personally, can write for list of questions and circular, both of which will be sent free of charge. Address
